

Recommended General Plan Land Use Designations

February 26, 2025 – FOR CITY COUNCIL REVIEW

Overview

General Plan Land Use Designations establish development standards for each designation on the land use map. Residential density is expressed as housing units per net acre of developable land, and for non-residential and mixed uses, a maximum permitted ratio of floor area to net site area (FAR) is specified. The City’s Municipal Code (including the Implementing Zoning Ordinance (IZO) and SmartCode) contains more detailed regulations and standards for physical development, which in turn helps to implement the General Plan land use designation. Specific plans, zoning actions, development agreements, entitlement review, and subdivisions must be consistent with the Land Use Map and Designation standards.

Building on the GPAC’s input, feedback from the Planning Commission, community engagement, and test fit analysis, the GPU Team has prepared these recommended revised Land Use Designations. The Designations are organized into four tables: Residential, Mixed Use, Commercial & Industrial, and Public. Within each table, each designation is defined by its intent, allowed uses, and standards for density, intensity, and height. Definitions of the allowed uses are immediately below. After the adoption of the revised General Plan, the Zoning Code will be revised and contain more detailed regulations to implement each land use designation.

Underlined standards are new or revisions to standards in the existing General Plan. Bolded and underlined standards are revisions to those included in the draft Land Use Policy Framework. Note also that the Neighborhood Corridor Mixed Use and the Neighborhood Center Mixed Use have been combined as “Neighborhood Center Mixed Use.”

Mixed Use Designations

“Mixed use” describes an area in which both residential and non-residential uses are allowed, either vertically (one above the other) or horizontally (one besides or behind the other). The current General Plan contains a single mixed use designation, while the IZO and SmartCode contain (at present) seven mixed use zones.

Since the adoption of the current General Plan, new State law allows development up to the highest maximum allowable residential density established in either a city’s Zoning Ordinance or General Plan, whichever is greater. To ensure consistency between the General Plan designations and the zones in the City’s IZO and SmartCode, the number of mixed use General Plan designations has been expanded. The tables below note the corresponding zoning districts as found in the IZO or SmartCode.

Land Use Definitions

Residential

- Plex: A range of house-scale buildings with multiple units, such as duplexes, fourplexes, cottage or garden courts, and multiplexes, that match the scale of single-family neighborhoods.
- Multifamily: A large-scale housing configuration where multiple separate housing units are contained within one apartment or condominium building or several buildings within one complex.

Mixed Use

- Vertical Mixed Use: A configuration with one use (typically residential) located above another (typically non-residential).
- Horizontal Mixed Use: A combination of residential and non-residential uses across a site.
- Live/Work: A hybrid unit combining residential with commercial or limited industrial uses in the same space.
- Active Uses: Uses that result in street activity during most of the day, including retail, services, live/work, coworking, gym/fitness, studio, maker, civic (e.g., education, childcare, library), and community space, and not including most office uses in which activity is limited to workers coming and going.
- Large Sites: Parcels or proposed development projects that exceed 2.5 total acres. Horizontal (or vertical) mixed use is required for large sites located in Urban Corridor Mixed Use and Flex designations to promote a mix of residential and commercial uses.

Commercial and Industrial

- Standalone Commercial: Allows retail, restaurants/food service, services, entertainment/indoor recreation, professional offices, medical office, craft/artisan/ small-scale food & beverage manufacture, hotels/lodging.
- R&D (Research and Development). A facility for scientific research, and the design, development and testing components in advance of product manufacturing, and the assembly of related products from parts produced off-site, where the manufacturing activity is secondary to the research and development activities.
- PDR: Production (light and medium manufacturing), Distribution (establishments engaged in selling merchandise to retailers, contractors, or other industrial, commercial, institutional, farm, or professional business users), and Repair (business that provides repair and/or maintenance services).
- Food & Beverage: Medium or large-scale food and beverage product manufacturing, including distribution and on-site sale.
- Maker: Manufacturing and/or assembling of small products primarily by hand, including but not limited to jewelry, ceramics, glass and metal art, and craft products. May also include small-scale food and beverage product manufacturing.
- Light Industrial: Processes and materials that are unlikely to cause significant impacts on surrounding land uses or the community.
- Heavy Industrial: Processes and materials that typically have significant impacts on surrounding uses and communities, like construction yards, asphalt production, quarrying, and factories.
