Hey City of Petaluma,

I'd love to see an outdoor marketplace in Petaluma, as proposed for The Floodway project. Leveraging food trucks in that space seems like the safest and most responsible use of a floodway.

Since you're repeatedly denying The Floodway project, I'm curious what else you could possibly put there that's entertaining, good for the city, and safe.

The lot's been an eye sore and in all honesty, bringing The Floodway into town seems like a good way to put Petaluma back on the map (my friends only know it for a brewery or two). The small charming town deserves to be known for more fun things. Please don't let Petaluma get outdated.

Best,
Mariah
