As a citizen of Petaluma, I'm all in favor of the city council approving The Floodway Project at the north west end of town, It would be a great addition to the city and provide means for many small business to grow.

As you must already know, many of the established brick and mortar restaurants in Petaluma got started at farmers markets or with food trucks, they provide a valuable resource for entrepreneurs and residents alike.

I understand the Floodway is in the floodplain, but being 100% mobile it will not be open when it rains, the pumpkin patch is also in the floodplain, but this is allowed.
